H. A SPECIAL WORD OF THANKS

To all employees who contributed to the promotion of our special activities during the month of June.

I. IN CLOSING

WHY SO MANY FAILURES IN COLLEGE? Brooklyn College officials studied their records and surveyed students who were unable to do successful academic work. In descending order, the most frequent reasons listed were: poor study habits, insufficient study, lack of interest, emotional problems, no vocational goal, home circumstances, insufficient high school preparation, improper study facilities, employment, co-curricular activities and illness.

Among corrective measures recommended, the following is most important:

"In the first days of their college experience students should have explained to them the new study habits that are necessary for them to succeed."

Very truly yours,

E. B. Evans
President
